PROFILE

I am a self-taught programmer who changed careers in 2022, having previously been a lawyer, but decided to pursue my passion in Technology after moving to Ireland. I consider myself passionate about new technologies and continue to learn every day.

My focus is web development, with JavaScript, TypeScript, React Native and React among other technologies that I use to create new projects.

I am a focused, determined and consistent professional, with an ease to learn new technologies and a diligent approach to everything I do. I find it fascinating to learn new things, find solutions to problems and deal with technology. I am always committed to doing my best at my job and exceeding expectations. To me, continuous learning is the key to being a great developer and I'm always trying to keep learning to improve my software development skills.
